

Pi Day 2006

Once again the Department of Mathematical Sciences held its annual Pi Day celebration on March 14, 2006 (if you leave off the year it can be written 3.14). There were posters, activities and good times for one of the larger crowds ever, including many faculty and administrators who took the opportunity to get away from their offices and engage in a little good-natured competition.

Some Posters

Start them young

A new kind of bank?

Curling comes to Fredonia

Ready for the Olympics?

Curly Haired Bosses Plotting Strategy

One Winner Missed a T-Shirt?

Grand Prize Winners

