Bachelor of Arts in Psychology, Forensics Track

Program Requirements (35 credits):

Core Group – all required
- PSY 129 – Introduction to Psychology (3 credits)
- PSY 130 – Psychology Laboratory (1 credit)
- PSY 200 – Statistics (3 credits)
- PSY 210 – Research Methods (4 credits)

Group A – Psychophysiology (3 credits), either:
- PSY 351 – Physiological Psychology
- PSY 361 – Cognitive Neuroscience

Group B – Cognitive (3 credits)
- PSY 244 – Cognitive Psychology
- PSY 344 – Psychology of Language
- PSY 364 – Cognitive Development

Group C – Social (3 credits)
- PSY 245 – Social Psychology
- PSY 365 – Social Development

Group D – Clinical/Counseling (6-9 credits)
- PSY 356 – Abnormal Psychology (3 credits) -- REQUIRED
- PSY 447 – Introduction to Counseling (3 credits) -- REQUIRED
- PSY 379 – Child Psychopathology (3 credits) -- Recommended

Theoretical Thinking (3 credits), either
- PSY 429 – History and Systems
- PSY 430 – Theories of Psychology
- PSY 439 – Senior Honors Seminar
- PSY 445 – Seminar in Social Psychology
- PSY 454 – Theories of Memory

Additional Requirements in PSY:
PSY 358 – Psychology and the Law, plus 3 more elective credits of PSY. One course completed for this track must have a developmental focus. PSY 364, PSY 365, and PSY 379 may count here as well as in the groupings above. PSY 349 (Child Psychology) also meets the developmental course requirement.

1. Courses outside PSY: CRMJ 100 (Introduction to Criminal Justice), one 3-credit course in MAT (105, 106, 108, 110, 120, or 122) and completion of a minor or other major