1999 Annual Meeting

Please plan to attend a very special chapter meeting on Saturday, October 16 at the University at Buffalo Music Library, where the chapter will celebrate the life and careers of two esteemed members of the music library profession.

The program is entitled Papers in Music Bibliography: in celebration of the careers of James B. Coover and Carol June Bradley. Program chair Jim Cassaro and the folks at the University at Buffalo have put together a very impressive program, featuring presentations by Don Krummel, Lenore Coral, Richard McRae, Jane Edmister Penner, and keynote speaker Christopher Coover. You can find complete program and registration information for this event on the following pages.

Coover and Bradley came to the University at Buffalo in 1967 from Vassar College. UB's fledgling music collection at the time did not meet the needs of the faculty in the fast-growing Department of Music; Coover and Bradley set out and met the challenge of building -- essentially from the ground up -- what would become a large and richly diverse music research collection. The Music Library's present home (pictured above) occupies the ground floor of Baird Hall, and has been open since August of 1981.

Message from the Chair

With plans coming together for the October 16th New York State /Ontario Chapter meeting, I heartily invite all our members to try and make time in your busy schedules for this one. James B. Coover and Carol June Bradley have retired as of July 1999 from the University at Buffalo Music Library. In celebration of their careers, focusing energy and creativity in the field of Music Librarianship for 32 years, the program committee has planned an exciting day of events.

We applaud not only their accomplishments, but also, the inspiration they have provided from time to time for those of us in or close to the profession.

I look forward to seeing those of you who can make it in October and hope you have a productive year ahead.

Raya Then, NYSO Chair
