

B.A. ENGLISH

The State University of New York at Fredonia is committed to doing our part to provide each student a clear path to graduation. This four-year degree plan is a sample map for fulfilling requirements in the major, the College Core Curriculum (CCC), and other supporting courses. The pathway that you take to your degree may differ somewhat from this illustration, depending on where you start and the detours and side trips you may take along the way. If you are committed to completing your degree in four years, we encourage you to consider signing up for the Fredonia in 4 program. For complete information about this degree program, please consult the university catalog at fredonia.smartcatalogiq.com

The B.A. English degree offers a broad education in the literature of current and historical times and cultures, emphasizing critical reading and thoughtful writing. Traditional literary and historical analysis of fiction, poetry, and drama is basic to the discipline; however, that study may be extended in many ways. Options include film, cultural studies, language study, pedagogy, and creative writing. Graduates of the department are employed by journals, publishers, business firms, arts organizations, and schools; some also go on to graduate programs in English, education, American studies, journalism, law, social work, and creative writing.

Why study the Humanities at Fredonia?

Working with engaged, accomplished faculty who are committed to student success, students explore the human experience from multiple dimensions, including literature, philosophy, history, the arts, and languages. Our humanities programs empower students to develop greater intellectual curiosity, foster creative thinking, and build marketable skills that are transferable to a wide array of careers.

A practical approach to a liberal arts experience

- Our programs connect classroom learning with contemporary problems to strengthen our students' understanding of the world and their place in it.
- We help students develop strong research and writing skills so they can effectively communicate in a rapidly changing world.
- Our students develop the critical skills and knowledge that will provide an important intellectual foundation to meet the challenges of the global future.
- We provide opportunities for our students to work with and take leadership roles in several campus media groups, including radio and television stations, student newspaper, and other online and social media channels.

- Our students take advantage of study abroad programs and internships which allow them to apply classroom learning in real-world settings.

Be ready for the future

96% of new Fredonia graduates report they are employed in their field of study or pursuing an advanced degree, such as a master's, doctorate or a law degree.

Exceptional professors

- Our faculty members make sure teaching you is "Job 1" at Fredonia. They take an active interest in your personal development and professional success. And they'll know you by name, too.
- They're accomplished scholars, educators and writers who present their research and creative works internationally, and are widely published, too. In fact, you'll find the greatest concentration of published authors at Fredonia in the Humanities.
- Many have earned SUNY-wide awards in Teaching, Scholarship and Creative Activities, as well as prestigious national awards and fellowships.

Internships abound

You'll be encouraged to apply what you've learned in the classroom through an extensive range of internships related to your major, so you can apply your knowledge in a real-world environment.

What can you do with a Humanities degree?

- Excellent research skills and the ability to craft persuasive arguments lead Humanities students to pursue careers in the law and public policy.
- Strong writing and communication skills prepare Humanities students for careers in publishing, translating, journalism, broadcasting, videography, and public relations.
- Experience interpreting and analyzing evidence serves Humanities students well in careers as varied as librarianship, development planning, and data analytics.

- Humanities students' creativity and flexible approach to problem solving are in high demand in fields such as management, marketing, consulting, and financial planning.

Accomplished Humanities alumni

- Mark Anthony Neal – Duke University professor, author and NPR host
- Wendy Corsi Staub – New York Times best-selling author
- Gretchen Geitter – Vice President for Community Relations, Buffalo Bills
- James Foley – former U.S. Ambassador to Haiti and Croatia

You're ready for the challenge.
